AREA OVERVIEW

MIDDLETON, IDAHO

Middleton, Idaho, is a rapidly growing city located in the western Treasure Valley, approximately 20 miles west of downtown Boise and just north of Interstate 84. Originally established in the early 1900s as an agricultural community, Middleton has evolved into one of the region's most desirable small cities, offering a balance of rural character and modern development. The city's strategic location provides convenient access to major employment centers in Boise, Meridian, and Nampa while maintaining a distinct small-town feel.

Middleton is known for its strong sense of community, quality schools, and expanding residential and commercial development. The historic downtown area serves as a local gathering point, hosting community events and supporting small businesses, while newer growth continues along major corridors. Surrounded by farmland, open space, and views of the Boise foothills, Middleton appeals to residents and businesses seeking long-term growth opportunities in a well-planned, high-demand market. As population and infrastructure continue to expand, the city remains focused on thoughtful development that preserves its heritage while supporting future economic vitality.
